Thunderbird History and Fact Sheet

Thunderbird Mission Statement

"We educate global leaders who create sustainable prosperity worldwide."

Thunderbird Vision Statement

"We dramatically grow our positive impact in a world economy in dire need of the global leadership talent we were founded to provide."

Thunderbird History

- Thunderbird began as an Allied Army Airfield training base, Thunderbird Field, for Chinese, British and American pilots during WWII.
- Thunderbird School of Global Management is the oldest and largest graduate management school in the United States focused solely on preparing international business leaders.
- It was founded in 1946, following World War II, by Lieutenant General Barton Kyle Yount, the Commanding General of the U.S. Army Air Training Command.
- The school was intended to create a training facility for Americans to function in international environments through business, language, and cross-culture training.
- The School was founded as a nonprofit organization known as the American Institute for Foreign Trade. Classes began October 1, 1946, and the first class graduated June 14, 1947. The school has since graduated more than 40,000 students who live and work in more than 140 countries.
- General Barton Kyle Yount purchased the Thunderbird Field from the government for a 100% discount, with the agreement that it would be used for education.
- Thunderbird became an independent unit of Arizona State University in 2014.
- In 2018, Thunderbird was relocated from its campus in Glendale to ASU’s Downtown Phoenix campus.

Thunderbird Facts

- Thunderbird School of Global Management is the oldest and largest graduate management school in the United States focused solely on preparing international business leaders. In any given trimester, more than 50 countries are represented in the student body, offering diversity just by attendance, as well as courses and activities that promote cross-cultural ideals.
- In 1946, General Barton Kyle Yount obtained the Thunderbird airfield from the US government for $1.00 (a 100% educational discount). A congressman grew suspicious of this land deal and opened an investigation. The investigation became national news, and was carried by all the major newspaper across the US. The investigation turned out to be the best publicity that money didn’t buy. Since the story of the new school splashed across headlines, interest was generated throughout the country and the school opened six months later with a full class of students, mostly WWII veterans.

- The School was founded as a nonprofit organization known as the American Institute for Foreign Trade. Classes began October 1, 1946, and the first class graduated June 14, 1947. The school has since graduated more than 40,000 students who live and work in more than 140 countries.
- Dan Quayle, who served as the 44th Vice President of the United States under President George H. W. Bush (1989–1993) was a distinguished visiting professor of international studies for two years at Thunderbird.

Thunderbird at the Arizona Center

Thunderbird will be moving into the heart of the Arizona Center at the One Arizona Center building in the interim while a long term building is being built. Students and faculty will be able to enjoy the dining, shopping and entertainment while getting their elite global education. The beautiful walkways and scenery will add to their student experience.

Arizona Center

“Arizona Center is the heartbeat of downtown Phoenix. It's where entertainment, shopping, live music and events, casual dining, and prime work spaces create a unique, centralized hub for all who want to join in on the excitement of downtown. Arizona Center has a wide selection of restaurants for breakfast, lunch, and dinner. From Southwestern cuisine at Canyon Café to breakfast and coffee on the go at Starbucks, whatever time of day and whatever your taste, Arizona Center will curb your cravings.

The refreshing waterways and greenspace at Arizona Center create the ultimate urban oasis for relaxing and unwinding. Take in the tranquility as you stroll through the lush garden grotto and enjoy the courtyard shops and galleries. Host an affair to remember, personal or corporate, by utilizing our unique and centrally located outdoor amenities capable of accommodating groups of almost any size. Restaurants, retail, events and more, you can make Arizona Center your own.”
